MBS FLAGSHIP COURSES

Responsible Leadership

In this module, you will explore responsible leadership – a fascinating topic which, in all its incarnations, has always been of the utmost importance. Given the challenges currently facing society, and indeed the entire planet, it is vitally important that managers understand this topic in all its manifold dimensions, starting with classic leadership theories and all the way through to new dimensions of leadership, such as leading diversity and the role of ethics and values in leadership.

Innovation and Entrepreneurship

In the highly competitive world in which we live, innovative ideas are what separates successful businesses from the rest. These ideas are often generated by individuals with the vision to turn their innovative concepts into business ventures – entrepreneurial enterprises. Creating an outstanding product, developing a strong brand and building a solid customer base all require innovation. Entrepreneurship and innovation both involve identifying high-potential commercial opportunities, gathering resources such as talent and capital, and managing rapid growth and significant risks. This course covers all of these aspects, equipping you as a manager with the skills you need to pro-actively tackle the challenges you will face as you strive to be innovative and entrepreneurial.

Global Management

Our world is characterized by the global movement of goods and financial transactions. In this course, you will explore the key areas a modern manager has to be aware of and actively manage from a global perspective. Starting by looking at global value-creation networks, the focus then shifts to market entry modes and associated decisions in selecting a suitable country for a company's global activities. The course also discusses cultural and ethical issues as well as key components of global risk management.

EXPERT BUSINESS KNOWLEDGE

Accounting for Management Decisions

This course will give you an understanding of the accounting process and you will become familiar with key accounting reports. You will develop skills in financial statement analysis and profitability analysis. The course emphasizes both financial and managerial accounting, the latter covering cost-volume-profit analysis, cost allocation and activity based costing. The course consists of two components: The first is a two day accounting bootcamp where the learning is fast and intensive. You will then participate in the business simulation "C-Suite Life" taking on one of the key roles in a struggling organization tasked with returning the business to profitability and growth.

Financial Management

It is imperative for any manager, and for senior managers in particular, to have a basic understanding of financial matters. The course is designed for non-financial executives who require a better understanding of the financial impact of business decisions. The course introduces current financial concepts and tools towards money management in organizations participating in local and especially global economies. The course also introduces the topic of sustainable finance. Knowing and understanding how sustainability criteria such as ecological and social factors can be proactively integrated in financial markets and financial decision-making is increasingly demanded by customers, society and politics.

Strategic Marketing

Successful marketing managers understand both quantitative and qualitative aspects of customer behavior in consumer as well as business markets. The Strategic Marketing course provides you with a broad understanding of fundamental marketing concepts, theories and applications. It also emphasizes a number of highly important topics for today's managers: the role of sustainability in marketing management and modern marketing mix management and the rise of social media, digitalization and big data.

Personal Development

This course gives you the opportunity to get clarity about yourself. Your personality traits, values, needs and beliefs – to gain a full picture of your personality. The course guides you through different aspects of your personality and helps you identify the direction you would like to give your career. For those who are already on the right personal career path, it provides tools to better understand colleagues' and employees' needs and ways of working. Through personal reflections, group discussions and peer support by the end of the course you will develop an individual development plan that will guide you towards your goal. On a voluntary level, participants have the option to work in more depth on specific topics (identified in the development plan) in three sessions with one of the MBA Coaches.

ELECTIVES

Business in Germany

This course is designed to help MBA candidates with an international background navigate the intricacies of working in a German setting. The course reflects on the socio-political environment in Germany and important legal aspects to consider. In addition, key success factors for doing business in Germany are discussed, as well as the significance that the EU has for Germany and for German corporations.

Global Supply Chain Management

Value creation has changed dramatically in past decades. Companies have moved away from being the main location for corporate value creation, to a set-up where only a few core competencies remain with the company that customers generally associate with the product. In addition, supply chains have internationalized dramatically in recent years. Companies now look for suppliers and customers not only on a local or regional basis, but across the globe. The course explores the challenges and opportunities that these developments offer.

Management in Emerging Markets

The goal of this course is to provide a solid base of knowledge in relation to some of the most vibrant and economically flourishing regions of the world. Course participants will study the economic and institutional forces that spur or hinder business activity and growth in emerging economies. The course is designed to provide both quantitative and theoretical foundations for the study of emerging markets.

Data Analytics

In today's data-driven business landscape, the ability to effectively analyze and interpret data has become a vital skill. Data analytics empowers managers to make informed decisions, identify patterns, and uncover insights that can drive organizational growth and competitive advantage. In this introductory module, the impact of data on management decisions is investigated, going into technicalities of data collection and usage, as well as practical application of data analysis in the decision making process.

MBA HIGHLIGHT WEEKS

International Week (EMBA)

A special highlight of the MBA General Management program at MBS is the International EMBA Week. As part of the flagship course in Global Management you will have the opportunity to spend one week at one of our nine international partner business schools from the EMBA Consortium, for example in Italy, USA, Japan, UK or Brazil. The International week aims to enrich the educational experience of MBA students, offering a global portfolio of geographically focused programs. Each MBA student is free to choose the university that appeals to their own interests and immerse themselves in a new culture and an international study group.

Participation in the International Week will enable you to meet and learn more about global market leaders in industries and sectors including technology, automotive, luxury management or consulting. You will be exposed to decision-making processes within the global context and get your very own opportunity to network with business leaders who face such challenges on daily basis. Through the course of your International Week, you will develop a better understanding of the impact that culture has on business, and how cultural heritage transcends borders affecting operations of global industry leaders.

Start-up Week

The Start-up Week is part of the Innovation & Entrepreneurship flagship course and gives you the opportunity to work on your entrepreneurial skills. You will learn about modern problem-solving approaches, meet with entrepreneurs and eventually develop your own business idea, which you will present to an expert audience.

Business Simulation Week

During your Business Simulation Week, together with your classmates you will take part in a three-day round-the-clock simulation of crisis situation you could face as a business executive, you and your team will have to deal with a whole range of issues that managers of today's business world face to turn around a struggling business.
